WEATHER...

The Deep Southwest, as opposed to the "deep" in the song title "...In the Heart of Texas", as are we of Central Texas, is a study in windswept unpredictability.

We refer to West, Northwest Texas and New Mexico in recent days.

While El Paso was frozen and snowed in earlier in the week, it was rainy here. To the Northwest, it was flurries of snow which alternately froze and melted, making the passing side of a free way a ballet dance past the rush of a semi-truck trailer. The "slow traffic" side was safe, and, therefore, "fast."

Clayton, N. M. was as clear as the mountain air around it and crisp as a cowboy's chaps hanging on the wall of a frosty bunkhouse.

Arty, hippie-touched Taos was like a bullfight arena: the sunny side of dusty streets warm and bright in the 30-degree afternoon, the shadows beneath the adobe-fronted shops and galleries by comparison chill and intimidating.

Where the sun warmed recent moisture, mud splattered from passing cars. With splattering enough, the moisture evaporated mud to dust, a reminder that humidity is a sometime thing called snow at 7,000 feet.

Upon Mt. Wheeler, the tallest thrust of nature in New Mexico, snow covered rock thousands of feet above the timberline, while lesser peaks stood in imitation and a certain welcome to skiers trying the seven-mile Taos Ski Run.

Small cars purred along highway and streets, skis fastened to rooftops or clasped along the low slung backsides of VW's, Porsches and MG's, the kind of vehicle not uncommon in an area one shopkeeper described "as the only town in the U. S. a friend of his found European enough to live in."

This weather keeps tourists to a minimum and brings up skiers who don't drive over the next mountain range to more famous slopes in Colorado.

But Colorado, and its violent snow storms are just over Mt. Wheeler and the other massive crests lining the northwestern horizon.

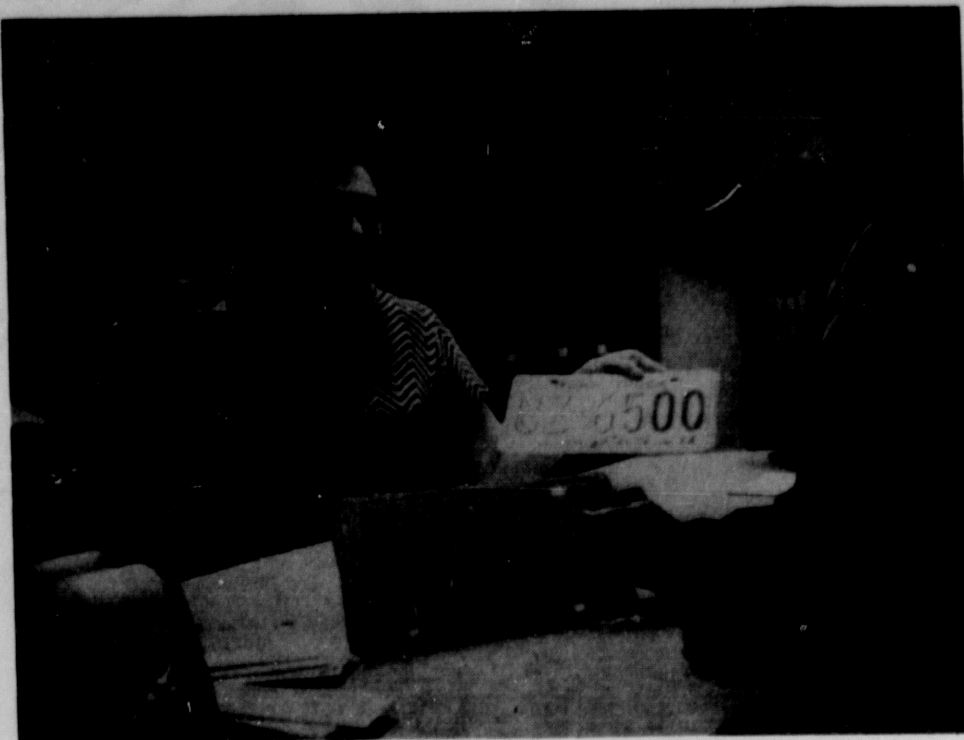

A day or two earlier, a 90-mile wind whipped snowless through the canyon between Taos and the area west of Clayton, testing the prospect of drifts for the next force through the stretch of pine and stream in these Rockies.

It was a reminder of immeasurable power, said the eyes of a gas station attendant who described his impression of the gale.

Those Northwest Plains, so heavily tilled and irrigated, only infrequently punctuated by a town, are the Panhandle table top for such forces to play on and to become whirling fury in a warmer spring or fall.

Warm it wasn't, these recent days. Dry and invigorating and clear bright, the kind of light artists find worthy of permanent residence, it was.

For early risers, it was a time of year and a late full moon and a mantle of crispness and a place for plainsmen and mountaineers of a new, but timeless breed.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN, and L. J. Raska gets two sets of license plates from Ellen Crenan at the county tax office. Deadline for displaying the new 1972 plates is April 1.

WORK HAS 'SOUL'

Both men are about the same age, in the late 40s, but each has an advantage going over the other. Of Brock's current success, Thelma Dodson of Dodson Galleries, where his work is shown exclusive of other sculptors, says his work is technically good, but that it has "soul."

Lyons is a craftsman of the casting technic, as well as sculptor, aided in the past two years by a resident hippie, Jerry (no last name, which hips never have), who works for room and board and who is good at his trade. Lyons is also an artist, working now on a modern canvas, the outline of which was only begun when we arrived. Jerry is technically trained, three years at Michigan Tech in engineering. Lyons has studied engineering, but never received a graduate degree, which for this man would be superfluous.

Brock speaks also of Kelly Pruitt, one of the top Western sculptors, but not cast in this brief story, because he travels a lot, has his casts done by the Italian bronze masters in Rome and who currently finds interest in Zen Buddhism as well as oil paintings of the West and his Western bronze figures. Other than Brooks, Lyons and work by a former professor named Gordon, Taos this past weekend was showing no other Western bronzes.

ONLY BROCK'S WORK

The Dodson Galleries, on the corner of a main highway and across from a gallery-lined plaza, shows only Brock's work. His figures are in the windows, along a front shelf and downstairs among Western art the costs of primary elections. It is also our judgment that this possibility rests in the hands of the Governor of Texas."

"It may develop that if we are to have primary elections the cost of holding the elections will have to be paid by voluntary contributions," Law added.

Candidates for the May 6 primary are:

W. R. (Bob) Poage, U. S. Representative, 11th Congressional District; William N. (Bill) Patman, State Senator, 18th District; Winthrop Selley, State Board of Education;

W. C. Wallace, District Judge, 20th Judicial District; Carl G. Black, sheriff; V. T. White, assessor; collector of taxes;

Adolph Gresak, county commissioner, Precinct 1; John Zajicek, county commissioner Precinct 1; Albert W. (Red) Abel, county commissioner, Precinct 1;

Cliff Blackburn, county commissioner Precinct 3; Gerald (Bigun) Vinton, county commissioner, Precinct 3; Seabron Key, county commissioner Precinct 3;

J. M. Terry, constable Precinct 1; Charles W. Bailey, constable Precinct 2; Marvin W. Cotten, constable precinct 3; Theo Telg, constable precinct 3; work by several gifted men, including Van Dries, whose pallet knife work is superb portraiture.

Brock says about 70 galleries or places where someone's art is displayed are in the Taos area. The town itself is Spanish architecture, more Southwest Mexican, and about 7,000 feet high, surrounded by Rockies aiming up to 13,000 feet above sea level. Taos and El Prado, Taos Pueblo account for about 15,000 people, including the Pueblo Indians who recently received back from the federal government the massive mountain lands once theirs.

People ski in the winter and stay in cabins in summer, but Taos shows art the year round. The same demand compels Brock to make about four or five trips a year to take figures for casting. He sells quite a number from his North Cameron studio, ironically now overlooking the Cameron Industrial District just off Industrial Blvd.

He is thinking of locating a cabin in Eagle's Nest, which, as you might suspect, hovers over Taos about 25 miles to the northeast, looking into Taos Canyon, a stretch of grandeur, of green-blue extravaganzas in proportions only people who love nature at its most massive can appreciate.

He would spend perhaps five months a year there with his family on vacation and develop a skill that is finding audience among people from Houston to Denver and Taos to Detroit, people who find "soul" in the gritty realism of figures he creates in Cameron.

No Funds For Drain Project

Cameron City Council meeting in regular session Tuesday evening learned that the city's storm drainage project, first offered by the Economic Development Administration (EDA), will not start any time soon, if ever, because of lack of federal funds.

Mayor E. A. Perrin read to councilmen correspondence between the mayor, the Texas EDA director, and Sen. John Tower on the project. Correspondence was also carried on with Cong. W. R. Poage's office.

Funds may become available in the future, EDA said.

The city will probably begin paving on Crockett St. which was put off awaiting building the storm drainage system in the area.

In other business council discussed speeding fines and heard that the sliding scale of fines was set by the city judge and city attorney.

Yoe High School Reports Breakin

Thieves broke into Yoe High School Monday night and took about $5 in cash, a calculator and a radio from the school office.

Entry was gained through the boys restroom window and then by breaking the lock on the office door.

The Milam County Sheriff's Department is investigating the break-in.

McKinney Cited For Saving Woman's Life

Jack McKinney and Lowell Johnston were honored in Abilene recently for "extraordinary personal action" that probably saved the life of Mrs. V. C. Perini of Abilene.

The Taylor County Chapter of the American Red Cross recognized the two men for their quick action following a call for help from Mrs. Perini.

McKinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVert McKinney of Cameron, was chief counselor for the Wear-Ever Aluminum Co. Abilene District. Johnston was in training to work with him.

The Red Cross said Mrs. Perini, who had an office in the same building with McKinney, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage while alone in her office on October 9. Before losing consciousness, she managed to call for help.

Johnston, who has had lifesaving training from the Red Cross, Boy Scouts and YMCA, and McKinney ran

Some complaints have been received about the cost of speeding tickets.

City Atty. Ed Magre read a notice from the Texas Water Quality Control Board outlining guidelines now required of cities to provide pollution control.

Magre was authorized to ask the Board if statewide meetings would be held to explain the new guidelines and requirements to city officials.

Council also re-appointed Dr. C. G. Swift as city health officer.

Biggs Named To Draft Board

Odell V. Biggs of Cameron has been appointed a member of the Milam County Draft Board. The appointment was made by the President of the United States.

Biggs is the assistant principal of Ben Milam School having served in this position the past five years. He previously served as principal of the Branchville School for 23 years.

Biggs received his B. A. degree in education from Huston-Tillotson College and he received his M. A. degree in education and administration from Texas Southern University. He is a member of the Baptist Church and the Masonic Lodge. His wife is a teacher of mathematics in junior high school. He has one daughter who is with the school systems in California.

to her aid and immediately called an ambulance.

Although Mrs. Perini doesn't remember the conversation, Johnston and McKinney managed to ask her several questions before she lost consciousness.

Johnston said Mrs. Perini suddenly stopped breathing and he was unable to find a pulse. He began administering artificial respiration and gave McKinney instructions in assisting him.

Johnston and McKinney continued the artificial respiration about three or four minutes before Mrs. Perini began breathing again.

Later, one of her doctors told Mrs. Perini that if McKinney and Johnston hadn't performed the emergency aid she would have suffered extensive brain damage and might have died.

Since the incident, McKinney has moved to Austin where he is with New York Life Insurance Co.

Kubiak Files For District 36

State Representative Dan Kubiak has filed as a candidate for the Texas House of Representatives to serve the new District 36. This district is composed of Falls, Milam and Williamson Counties, Williamson County having been substituted for Robertson County in District 27 which Kubiak has represented since 1969.

Kubiak stated that he would make a formal announcement of his candidacy, subject to the Democratic Primary May 6, at a later date.

Kubiak, a member of the "Dirty Thirty," has been a strong supporter of local control, economy in state government and non-essential spending.

Cameron Sculptor Hits Taos 'Bigtime'

By Frank M. Luecke

You know talent is a gift, but the courage to develop it, to exploit oneself enough, to believe in oneself enough to risk utter failure is something more.

I would not for a moment claim objectivity about the man of this story, and the driver of a pickup which carried us to Southwest art mecca Taos, N.M. the past weekend. Objectivity is probably impossible anyway, but for a man outselling all the Western sculptors in such a place in only five or six years, this is a story worth telling, however it comes out.

James Brock is the man, comely cowboy, a hero who is human and honest enough to outline his deficiencies long before he discusses what is happening to his work and to his life. I was a welcome witness to a cast of characters lately entered into his life and to the acceptance his work gains in the sophisticated, perhaps jaded world of Taos, third largest art center in the country and where his Western sculpture outsells everybody else.

One of his figures, an Indian at the trot, is an example. Fourteen of these bronzes are sold, and it will probably be the first figure Brock will take out of production. In such cases the artist protects the buyer's investment in the cast and its uniqueness by producing a limited number and destroying the original mold.

A REAL GUEST

Brock is the kind of man who invites you on a trip as his guest.

He won't let you help him drive; he won't let you pay for much of anything. Even when it's 800 miles one way in a day, to be exact 781 miles from downtown Cameron to Taos. He won't talk too much either, unless his concern is for some coffee to keep you from nodding or unless he has something to say. Small talk is cheap to Brock. In a world full of talk, that is an admirable trait.

He runs into problems in making the transition from bookkeeper, horse trainer and rodeo rider to Western artist in a town like Taos. One is not a problem so much as a co-artist and current caster of his work, Frank Lyons, himself noted throughout much of the country for his Western sculpture and bronze casting finesse.

While Brock is a tall, strong 6-2 Texas type, with a barrel chest, cropped hair and hairline mouth, Lyons is a widely read artist with a background in engineering and Connecticut art school training diverse from Brock's Central Texas background. Lyons wears his hair long, a lengthening Van Dyke beard and mustache. He commands attention by strength of language and flamboyance of a man who knows success in a world difficult to succeed in. He lives in a ranch house with massive den, where Brock and I slept two nights, houses his casting equipment in two wood sheds behind and busies himself with a gregariousness you would expect of a man who knows Taos and who is a contributor to its tradition as an art colony, a history which began after the turn of the century.

'Blowing Up' Differences....

A confrontation between Belfast, Ireland, people and British troops cost 13 lives the other day.

It follows such a bloody incident foreshadows others, considering a Reuter news feature datelined Belfast on these pages the other day.

While most college - age people spend long winter evenings reading almost any other kind of book imaginable, a group of young men and women in Belfast is fascinated by a book titled "The Explosive Lecturers Handbook".

Reuter correspondent Patrick Massey says 9 out of 10 times these avid readers are members of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) whose interest in explosives often culminates in a column of smoke and a big bang.

Sometimes, the student, after reading and studying the problems in this volume, blows himself "sky high".

It is little wonder that 13 civilians were killed the other day. British troops are assuaged of the expertise these IRA people are nurturing.

It is hard commentary on a people who could be working on the problems among them, trying to find similarities instead of blowing up, literally, the differences. It would help, also, if everybody there worked within the framework of 20th Century solutions.

Life As It Is...

Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the first prime minister of Bangladesh, formerly East Pakistan, has monumental problems, even for the Indian sub-continent.

He also has the acclaim of the masses of the impoverished new nation, to the point of adulation reminiscent of Gandhi's appeal to the hundreds of millions of Indian "untouchables."

Interviews suggest his basking in such adulation may create a euphoria which fails of the realities of Bangladesh. Charisma won't create a new economy, build a new river boat fleet, unify militants amidst religious rancor, salve hunger and close memories of atrocities which could easily re-occur.

He is hoping to hear from the United States, which came off badly by India's apparent triumph in the brief, bloody Indo-Pakistani war. Though the winner, India is in no position to help much, if anybody can.

This coup may have optimistic developments that Rahman's power over his people may encourage.

But it is predictable that historic problems of poverty, disease and hunger will continue to keep the now Bangladeshis at a sub-human existence.

It is another in a continuing experiment of freedom among new nations, whose hope is admirable and understandable in the West, but whose condition is complicated by Western - type war and Eastern indifference to life there as it is.

ideas which threaten the future of our system of government by denigrating the American traditions of individualism, human dignity, and self-reliance. We permit 283,000 of American tax dollars to be used to advance ideas which seem to me to contain the seeds of our own destruction...

"Journalists who cover the behavioral research field tell me that they have NO WAY to determine the full range of this expenditure of Federal funds. THIS IS CONFIRMED by the General Accounting Office. When I called for a review of Federal funds to Dr. Kenneth Clark, president of the American Psychological Association, and for an audit of all funds given for psychological research, they reported that the task I had set for them was VIRTUALLY IMPOSSIBLE."

"I repeat: The Congress has authorized and appropriated every single dollar in these grants and contracts yet, for the most part, we are unaware of how they are being spent..."

Shoddy bookkeeping will enable the bureaucrats to continue wasting the taxpayers money. Admitting that it doesn't know how some of the tax money is spent, Congress will move to increase the National Debt limit. -J.C.

Court Decisions Fuel Feud Between Smith, Barnes

By Bill Boykin

One adverse federal court decision after another fuels the feud between Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

Smith was quick to blame on Barnes the failure of a 1971 filing fee statute which threatens to force a special legislative session.

While that issue was still raging, another Dallas three-judge court struck down the legislature's congressional redistricting plan. Once more, Smith accused the lieutenant governor of "reluctance" and "inaction" on redistricting.

When a third court frowned on House of Representatives redistricting in major counties as done by a board Barnes served on, Smith once more leveled at the lieutenant governor charges of "immature action" and lack of leadership. Single-member districts were ordered for Bexar and Dallas counties.

Sen. J. P. Word of Meridian, speaking in Barnes' defense, said Smith offered the legislature no leadership himself and reminded that the governor could have vetoed the congressional redistricting measure if he didn't like it.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin succeeded in getting a temporary postponement of the congressional redistricting order. The U. S. Supreme Court agreed to delay the new plan pending appeal.

U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who intervened as a friend of the court in support of the stay, said congressional candidates for this year, at least, can run in the districts given them by the Legislature.

That would be a relief for Congressman Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls and Omar Burleson of Anson; Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Ray Roberts of McKinney and O. C. Fisher of San Angelo and Abraham Kazen of Laredo who had been pitted against each other in the federal district court plan.

If he has to call a special session on primary election financing, said Smith, he will expect "those responsible for creating this problem" to come up with "workable alternatives."

GOVERNOR'S POLL

Dolph Briscoe won another editor's poll last week at the mid - winter meeting of the Texas Press Association. Editors were asked first who they thought would carry their county -- if the vote were taken on that date (January 24). Forty-eight editors responded to the poll with this vote: Briscoe, 18; Preston Smith, 13; Ben Barnes, 12; Barnes - Briscoe tie, 2 and three undecided.

They were asked: "How will you vote in the 1972 Governor's race?" This was the result: Briscoe, 28; Smith, 6; Barnes, 5; Grover, 1 and undecided, 8.

CRIME FIGHT PROPOSED
The governor's Criminal Justice Council promises a legislative drive for laws to help stamp out organized crime in the state.

Mafia - type operations have been noted in Texas by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice and other investigators, the council's new 1972 plan points out.

Further, states the council, many bets on sports events are being taken by bookie shops with national "confederation" affiliation. This legislation was recommended:

* Power for the attorney general to bring suit in criminal cases.

* Subpoena power in a statewide grand jury or crime prevention council.

* Permission for electronic surveillance (including wiretapping).

The Council proposes to spend about $1 million of its projected $25 million 1972 allocations for action against organized crime.

INSURANCE HEARING

The State Board of Insurance set a February 15 hearing on insurance premium rates, broader damage coverage, and higher liability limits for coastal and beach areas, under the new Catastrophe Pool Act.

Due for consideration is a deductible on beach dwellings of two per cent of the amount insured, with a minimum deductible of $250 and elimination of percentage deductible on beach commercial risks substituting a $500 flat figure. The Board also proposes to consider adoption of building specifications for high risk coastal areas.

The Board will also consider hiking coverage limits to $1 million on beach dwellings and $5 million on commercial risks. Under the present pool, windstorm damage is limited to $100,000 on a beach home and $500,000 on a commercial venture such as a marina or hotel.

AG OPINIONS

A county has authority to construct and operate an area or regional wastewater collection and treatment system and perform water quality management functions, Attorney General Martin held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded:

* A 25 - year mineral lease had been duly extended and was in good standing last October 4 when an application for renewal was made to the School Land Board.

* An independent school district lacks authority to give an outright 20 - year lease of property to a neighborhood center.

* Fees paid erroneously to the Industrial Accident Board and placed in the state treasury may not be refunded in absence of a legislative appropriation.

* The State Building Commission has authority to contract with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for construction of state park projects and may contract with the State Highway Department for roads, trailer loops and parking areas with Board of Control approval.

* Parks and Wildlife Commission has authority to control taking of fish from public waters, but it's doubtful any rule imposing restrictions on bass tournament participants that would not apply to other fishermen would be valid.

* An applicant for certification as a psychologist must have received the doctoral degree.

* Texas Education Agency cannot participate separately in payment of premiums of insurance for its retired employees.

* The 1971 rules adopted by the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners are valid.

* Dallas Independent School District trustees cannot alter the method of electing members to provide that six be elected by votes of their single districts.

* Good Neighbor Commission members are not authorized reimbursement for use of private airplanes on official business out of state.

* The Industrial Accident Board has jurisdiction over industrial injuries to employees of the City of Bryan.

* A $5,000 legislative appropriation to Elm Creek Water Control District is valid, and the governor has no authority to veto a portion of an appropriation.

COURTS SPEAK

A candidate for state senator must live in his district only one year before the date of the general election, the State Supreme Court held.

Overruling the Austin Court of Civil Appeals, the High Court found legal the University of Texas' acquiring 280 acres of its UT-Permian Basin campus site at Odessa through donation of park land acquired with county bond funds.

The Court of Criminal Appeals relaxed rules on admissibility of gory pictures in murder trials, holding, in effect, that use of the photographs is largely up to the trial judge's discretion where it is "competent, material and relevant to the issue on trial."

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

The trouble with some people is they confuse something new with something better.

For example, according to an article I ran across in a newspaper yesterday, some scientists have looked into the future and reported that two - way cable television is going to revolutionize everybody's way of life.

A housewife, they said, will be able to stay at home, tune in a supermarket, look over the items, make her selections, and order them sent out, while a computer at the store rings up the sale on her account at her bank which is also plugged into the system. If her baby gets sick she turns her home camera on him, dials her doctor, and he makes the examination on his screen, with his prescription being filled by a plugged-in drug-store.

To top it off, the scientists said, the prime use of the system will be to eliminate schools as we know them. Kids stay at home, the teacher instructs them via her television and they answer via theirs. With one fell swoop this ends taxes for school buildings and football fields, ends busing, demonstrations and dress codes, Maybe even the P. T.A.

This may have its appeal at first glance, but those scientists haven't consulted apparently with very many parents.

From a young parent's viewpoint, one of the glorious advantages of universal public education is that it gets the kids out from under foot as soon as they reach age 6, and there's some agitation from parents whose nerves are about to break to make it 5 or 4.

You try to set up a system that keeps kids in the house every day until they're 18 and you'll be charged with inciting adults to riot.

It's true lots of schools are having financial trouble and recent rulings that property taxes as their chief means of support are unconstitutional are compounding the difficulty, but keeping kids at home under foot for their schooling would be worse than unconstitutional. It'd be inhuman. Ask any mother who's counting the days till her kid's old enough to start to school, down the block or across the town but not in her living room.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Duty of a Wife

"Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge."

Does the modern wife owe this kind of biblical loyalty to her husband? Under today's law, is she still obliged to let him choose the family home?

Almost everywhere, that continues to be the basic rule. By and large, it is the husband who has the last word as to where they will live. If the wife refuses to follow his lead, she is guilty of desertion—grounds for divorce.

Thus: To cut expenses, a man prepared to move to a smaller apartment. But his wife decided it was "not stylish enough" for her, and went home to her parents. After a long impasse, the man finally sued for divorce and won a decree. The judge said the wife's refusal to live with him, for no good and sufficient reason, made her a deserter in the eyes of the law.

Nevertheless, the husband's authority is far from absolute. He cannot insist on a housing arrangement which is simply not fair to his spouse.

For example, one man decided to move in with his mother, even though he could well afford separate lodgings—and even though his mother and his wife did not get along with each other.

A court held, in these circumstances, that the wife had a legitimate excuse for not joining the household.

Furthermore, when a man invites his wife to join him at a new location, he must really mean it—not just be going through the motions. One cantankerous husband, having journeyed alone to the West Coast, sent back the following "invitation" to his wife:

"I have completely gotten over my regard for you, if I ever had any. However, I am doing what I must do, even though you have ruined my life. I ask you to come and make your home with me, as the law requires."

When she held back, he tried to divorce her on the grounds of desertion. But the court ruled against him. The judge said this was the kind of an invitation that no self-respecting wife could possibly accept.

Tropical Animals Thrive In Cold

By Neil Harrison
Reuter Correspondent

TORONTO

Lions, tigers and leopards are being left out in sub-freezing temperatures of the Canadian winter at a zoological park near here and there are no complaints from the humans societies.

The experiment is part of a carefully controlled study to see if tropical animals can flourish in cold weather -- and the signs so far as that they can.

The zoological park at Wagsaga Beach, a lakeside holiday resort north of Toronto, is keeping the lions, tigers and other big cats outdoors with no special winter quarters.

The animals have no heating, no ventilators or steam pipes or other fittings zoos in this hemisphere use to maintain the comfort of their visitors from Africa, Asia and other hot-weather areas.

Their only shelters are windbreaks. Yet they appear to be thriving.

Zoo officials believe they are surviving simply by re-learning a lifestyle that was their own a couple of million years ago.

"We only think of lions and tigers and other large carnivores as tropical animals because of their present habitat, but that's an accident of natural history," park director C. Van Eysinga said.

He points out that the big cats' remote ancestors in the Pleistocene or great ice age lived and bred successfully amidst blizzards and

"Now, we're trying to return them to their heritage and study them as we do," he added.

The first reactions of the cats themselves have been to grow long shaggy coats and change their diets so that they take in much more carbohydrates and fat.

It also seems clear, the keepers says, that the lions and tigers fear the wind much more than cold alone.

They frolic about in temperatures of zero and below, providing the weather is calm.

But as soon as the wind starts to blow, they run for their shelters, even though their play areas are well protected by trees.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

WRITES BOOK WITH $283,000 TAX MONEY

REP. C.E. GALLAGHER (N.J.) "The specific fact I wish to disclose to my colleagues... is that the NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF MENTAL HEALTH has granted to Dr. B.F. Skinner the sum of $283,000 for the purpose of writing, 'BEYOND FREEDOM AND DIGNITY.' The NIMH grant description says this grant is to free Dr. Skinner from teaching or research responsibilities so that he may pursue 'Scholarly activities.'"

"B.F. Skinner is chairman of the Psychology Department at Harvard University and his 1948 novel 'WALDEN TWO' has over a million copies in print. In a recent John Hopkins University poll, psychology faculties and graduate students around the Nation named Skinner as the most respected social scientist alive...

"These simple facts reveal two important things. First, when Dr. Skinner speaks, millions of our fellow citizens take him very seriously; and second, Dr. Skinner is not exactly a charity case who depends on Federal funds to keep him in business."

"What Dr. Skinner proposes in 'BEYOND FREEDOM AND DIGNITY' is to alter modern life by conditioning the behavior of each citizen by positive or negative reinforcements. He proposes, quite simply to choose what is decent behavior and then reinforce it by rewards and should that not be totally successful, he would then punish negative behavior..."

"What I question is whether he should be subsidized by the Federal Government especially since, in my judgment, he is advancing

Credit Spending Can Lead Family Astray

According to home management specialists, a family can get onto soft ice financially without realizing something has gone wrong.

It would appear that a breadwinner would know at once that his 'financial ice' was thinning out or becoming soft," according to Mrs. Bonnie Fowler, home management specialist with Texas A&M University Extension Service.

"The ice usually begins to thaw on pay day. That's when it becomes apparent there's not enough money to satisfy all the creditors and still have enough left to pay daily living expenses until the next pay check.

"So, the head of the house convinces himself that the repair man, or someone else, won't mind waiting for his $10," Mrs. Fowler said.

"Next pay day it is only fair to pay the repair man first. But the money gives out before the television payment can be made. And the car payment is harder to make.

The specialist stressed that the ice melts fast and temperatures rise to melt financial ice even faster. "When this happens you're really on soft ice that will continue to get thinner. One bill left unpaid is just that much more to pay the next pay period.

"That's when it's time to face facts," Mrs. Fowler said.

The family is living on a higher level than its income permits."

Counselled the extension specialist. "Often there are several sides to a debate and several possible solutions to a problem. But the only sensible action here is to face the facts about spending.

Mrs. Fowler offered these pointers on deciding when a family can afford credit:

1. Spend no more money than you make each month.
2. Use credit only for those things with lasting value.

3. And buy things which a person with your income can afford.

"One way to determine how much credit you can afford is to make a list of all your expenses," Mrs. Fowler noted. "Estimate high, rather than low. Remember to include taxes, insurance, house payments and other expenses.

"And plan to save. Binding yourself to fixed monthly payments is risky if you don't have some extra money saved. Now add your expenses. To this amount, add any monthly payments you're now making. Next, subtract this total amount from your take-home pay. The figure left is what you can afford for credit payments.

"If the bills cannot be paid and worse, if the debtor has to ask for a loan to pay off a loan, the ice is thinning to the breaking point," she warned.

The home management specialist warned those thinking of a refinancing loan to get all the facts. "It's likely refinancing will cost more. And if all bills are consolidated, the breadwinner could feel so relieved that he would unwisely buy a new color television set, a better car or some home modernization," she cautioned.

"Then the race starts all over again, at a faster speed," she said.

"Families that overspend have no choice but to adjust their needs and wants to their income levels," Mrs. Fowler concluded.

Planter boxes of western cedar add color, accent to doorways, porches.

County Agent's Notes

Plant Pecan, Fruit Trees

By Bill McCutchen

It's the time of year to complete the plantings of your woody ornamentals, pecan and fruit trees. These woody plants should be planted in advance of spring to allow the root system to become partially established prior to Spring growth.

If you are considering pecan trees you should consider using, Desirable, Choctaw, Mohawk, Caddo, Sioux, or Shawnee in Milam County. Adapted peach varieties include, Springgold, Sentinel, Redglobe, Loring, Redskin and Frank (pickling). If you are considering plums select from the Bruce, Methley, or Ozark Premier. Pear varieties that do well in this area are Orient, Moon-glo, Magness, and Maxine.

Don't neglect the recently transplanted landscape plants. Dry winter winds can soon dry out the soil and damage plants before they become established.

Necessary pruning of trees and shrubs can be conducted this month. Delay pruning spring flowering trees and shrubs until after they bloom to avoid loss of flowers.

Pruning of hybrid tea roses should be delayed until about three weeks prior to the average date of the last killing frost. This means pruning about the last of February here. Be sure and delay pruning climbing roses until after the peak of spring bloom.

Fertilize lawns in late February or early March just as new growth starts. In the absence of a soil test use a complete fertilizer, applying 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 sq. feet. This would mean 8 to 12 pounds of 12-12-12 or equivalent per 100 square feet.

SMV EMBLEM

The slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem is now required by law on all vehicles designed to move at 25 miles per hour or slower when those vehicles are on a public roadway. The emblem should be mounted on a standard so the triangle is from two to six feet above the ground and centered as nearly as possible.

The reflective finish of the sign makes it even more usable in poor light, in the dark or in the beam of a car's headlights, than even in the daylight. The SMV emblem is additional to, not a substitute for, any other sign, light or flag required by law. It is, by law, placed not only on slow moving tractors but also on any slow moving towed vehicle, such as a cotton trailer.

Cotton Council Hears New Systems For Handling Seed Cotton

NEW ORLEANS

Members of the National Cotton Council here for their annual meeting heard about newly developed systems for handling seed cotton that can save growers as much as $24 a bale.

The report came from S. Frank Moore of Raleigh, N. C., director of the Research and Technical Services Center of Cotton Incorporated, the research and marketing organization of cotton growers.

The new systems allow seed cotton to be stored safely in the field until it can be scheduled for ginning. They are the most important developments in Cotton Incorporated's efforts to help growers increase profit from stalk to bale.

Cotton Incorporated sponsored research to develop the new systems at Texas Tech and Texas A&M universities. Other research is conducted at agricultural experiment stations throughout the Cotton Belt and at the Raleigh center.

Moore spoke to the technical committee made up of producers, ginners, crushers, co-op representatives, spinners, warehousemen and merchants.

His overview of research programs underway by Cotton Incorporated included reports on product development, flammability and durable press.

PEST CONTROL

A workshop for structural pest control operators is set for February 21-23 at the Ramada Inn in College Station. Discussions will be featured on cockroach control, toxicology of pesticides, fly-ing insect control, rat control, identification of insects and insecticides, effective communications and supplier's responsibilities to pest control operators.

FARM and CITY

Radiation Preserves Food

Remember when radiation was just used to cure diseases?

Now it's gone sophisticated.

Today's consumer may buy bananas a la radiation. Not to mention tomatoes, papayas, strawberries, potatoes and onions.

That's the word from Karen Kreipke, Extension foods and nutrition specialist for Texas A&M University.

"Radiation in the form of ionizing energy is now used to preserve some foods," Miss Kreipke said. "The radiant energy kills bacteria, yeasts, molds, parasites and other organisms associated with food spoilage or food-borne diseases."

"Because the conditions of the irradiation are carefully controlled, the food doesn't become radioactive. Controlled conditions also insure minimum loss of vitamins and other nutrients," the specialist added.

Radiation doses given to foods are measured in rads. (A rad is the amount of ionizing radiation which produces 100 ergs of energy for each gram of irradiated material.) Since rads are very small units, according to Miss Kreipke, larger doses of radiation are measured in megrads. (One megrad equals one million rads.)

(Radiation treatments between 75,000 and 300,000 rads have been used to extend the shelf life of highly perishable foods such as fish, poultry, oranges and strawberries," Miss Kreipke said. "Research indicates that irradiated fish, stored in a refrigerator for two weeks, is just as acceptable as fish just caught."

Smaller doses of radiation inhibit the sprouting of potatoes and onions, the specialist claimed. "And this treatment costs less than one cent for 100 pounds of potatoes. Radiation treatments can also slow the ripening of bananas, tomatoes, and papayas."

Looking to the future, Miss Kreipke said that larger doses of radiation can kill disease-causing food spoilage organisms in pre-packaged foods such as red meat, poultry and seafood. "With these larger doses of radiation, foods become shelf-stable and may be stored several years without refrigeration. (As in freezing, radiation treatment requires that food be blanched before it's treated and stored. Blanching, or heating quickly, inactivates enzymes which break down proteins and change the texture, flavor and appearance of foods.)

"Preserving foods by irradiation is such a new process that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has to approve each new food before it may be marketed," Miss Kreipke explained. "It's predicted, however, that by the end of the 70's, a large number of foods preserved by radiation treatment will be approved for marketing in the United States."

You've come a long way, baby.

ACTIVITIES

By Danny Phillips

The stock show season is at hand for many youth throughout Texas. Within the next month these major shows will take place and hundreds of top animals will be shown in many different divisions.

early.

These are a few suggestions to consider in selecting a beef calf and a few of the elementary things that must be done to at least give you a chance at a winning calf.

At the same time that this action is taking place, these same exhibitors are selecting and purchasing stock for the next show season. This is particularly true in the area of beef steers and heifers. With the emphasis on size and maturity in today's show cattle, it becomes more important to select projects earlier and put these projects on feed earlier.

It is a mistake to get your calves before you have a home ready for them. The shed should face south and should allow for adequate ventilation in the summer and adequate shelter in the winter. Rough lumber may be used for this shed. Aluminum roofing is considered very good because of its heat resistant qualities. A 4 to 6 inch layer of sand may be used for bedding. During the summer the sand may be sprinkled with water to keep the animals cool. Straw bedding may be used in extremely cold weather.

There are several questions that you need to answer for yourself before you select your calves. First, you need to know when and where you expect to show the animal. You need to know this in order to get calves ready and still not be overdone. Most calves of show caliber will gain at least 2.5 pounds per day while on feed. They should have adequate finish when they weigh 1,000 to 1150 pounds. Calves of this weight need not have more than one half inch of fat over the rib when shown. Judges generally favor even less finish.

The next question you need to ask is where are you going to get your calf. Do some serious looking and thinking on this. Choose a breeder that has a good reputation in the community or state for putting out top calves. Above all, it takes a lot of looking to find a good calf.

How much you are going to pay for your calf is important also. Don't spend more than you can afford to lose if you don't win. Remember, not everyone will win. On the other hand don't expect to get something for nothing. The cheapest calf does not make the best project. The job of selection is one of the most important jobs in your project. Select calves from a sire and than of good quality and who have produced calves that perform well. Large, growth calves that are structurally correct are more likely to gain and show well.

You should break your calf to lead when small. This is easier than when the calf has grown larger.

Be on the lookout for parasites. Flies, lice, grubs and worms will cut down your calf's growth efficiency. Flies can be controlled by spraying the premises and good sanitation practices. Lice need to be controlled with spraying or dusts also.

Systemic insecticides for controlling grubs may be administered as dips, sprays, pour-ons or fed in the feed. They should be administered between May 1 and September 1 and as close to May 1 as possible. Be sure and follow directions carefully. The publication, "Texas Guide for Controlling External Parasites" is available from the Extension office.

Castration should be performed early in life to avoid excessive shrink. Also, all calves should be dehorned

Farm Credit Banks Cite Cong. Poage

WASHINGTON

The role Texas Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage played in passage of far-reaching legislation overhauling the Farm Credit Administration has drawn commendation from officials of many of the Farm Credit banks over the country.

Typical was that embodied in a resolution adopted Jan. 19, 1972 by the Board of Directors of the Farm Credit Banks of Berkeley, headquartered in Berkeley, Calif., and serving the Pacific Coast area.

In a series of "whereas" clauses, the Berkeley resolution noted that "W. R. Poage, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States and a respected Congressman from the great State of Texas" was especially responsive to the needs of farmers and ranchers for better credit facilities.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved," the document added, "that the board of directors of the Farm Credit Banks of Berkeley expresses its sincere appreciation for his discerning and unselfish services on behalf of American agriculture and extends to him its wishes for continued success in working to solve the problems of agriculture."

The standard deduction is up this year. But maybe you should itemize.

Your best buddy Lenny might have told you to itemize your deductions because it would save you more tax dollars.

Your neighbor possibly suggested taking the standard deduction because you'd pay less taxes that way.

And Frank down at the office ... he helps everybody with their return ... what did Frank recommend?

If there's some way to save you money on your income tax, H & R Block will know how to do it.

Itemized and standard deductions are nothing new. We've been preparing returns for years using both. We'll figure out your situation both ways and then prepare your return using the method that's best for you.

You see, for only a few dollars more than it costs to do it yourself (with advice maybe from some other amateur), you can have your tax return prepared with complete confidentiality by a specially trained member of the H & R Block team. There are thousands of them in over 6,000 conveniently located offices.

Each member of H & R Block is warm, friendly and anxious to help you. A visit to H & R Block usually takes just a short time. Once in our office, you sit down over a free cup of coffee and possibly learn things about your income tax that you never knew existed. Things that we know, because income tax returns are our only business.

Creating Illusion Of Space

By Christine Laws
County Home Demonstration Agent

Creating space can provide very real problems in today's living. Living space has become one of our most expensive commodities. That's one reason why many young married couples decide on apartment living. And in an apartment, space becomes a major factor. To see how to make it work for you, let's take a look at these guidelines.

Use low, contemporary furniture with legs.

Divide your space with furnishings that don't take much room--for example, plants, mobiles or bookcases.

Use some "fool-the-eye" techniques such as mirrors or painting one wall a different color. A black wall seems to disappear and therefore opens up a room.

Keep your color scheme simple. Too many colors can make a small room appear cluttered.

Save your favorite art objects and books for shelves where they'll look more attractive and help divert the eye from the size of a room. Let your furnishings serve more than one purpose. One secret of making a small space work for you is to think through and decide exactly what your needs are. Maybe your husband is a student and needs a private place to study. If so, you can build a room by setting up a divider such as a bookcase that extends to the ceiling.

In a kitchen-dining and living room combination, area rugs and plants or furniture may be used as dividers to separate different activities. These create mental walls as well as help organize space.

CONSUMER COMPLAINTS

A key to promoting consumer power is learning how to register an effective complaint about an unsatisfactory purchase or service. Instigating a complaint against a company is often so frustrating that the consumer abandons her right of retaliation altogether.

But retreating only helps to prolong the poor service. Most businessmen and manufacturers want to learn shoppers' complaints so they can identify and correct their mistakes. Organizing an effective complaint means gathering all the facts.

The first step is to make sure a complaint is justified. Read the label or instructions for the manufacturer's directions for care and use. Check the guarantee or warranty. Know what is covered and what is not.

If the complaint is justified, plan your attack carefully, listing all reasons for dissatisfaction with the product or service. The list should also report information of where and when the product was purchased, its model number, brand name, price and a brief description of its faults.

The consumer is now ready to fire her complaint. Begin with the business or service organization with whom the original deal was made. If the complaint cannot be settled on the spot, ask to see someone in higher authority.

If you write to the store, address the complaint to the person most likely capable of helping you. In the letter present all facts as you would verbally, and keep a carbon copy.

Shoppers who telephone their complaints should record the name of the person they speak to in case the situation is not cleared up. If these efforts fail to produce results, it's time to contact the Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce.

ENGAGED - Mr. and Mrs. Norman Beaver of Irving, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Renee Adell, to Mr. Stephen Wayne Schmitz, also of Irving. The wedding will take place at 7:30 in the evening, February 4, 1972, at the building of the South Delaware Church of Christ in Irving. The mother of the bride is the former Dorothy Adell Crawford formerly of Cameron. The grandmother of the bride is Mrs. T. A. Crawford of Cameron. Mr. Beaver formerly served as a minister of the Church of Christ in Cameron. The ceremony will be performed by Mr. Bill Jackson, of the South Delaware church, whose father at one time served as a minister of the church in Cameron.

"The Lion In Winter" opened in New York in 1966 with a cast headed by Robert Preston as King Henry II. A screen version of the play was made with Peter O'Toole and Katherine Hepburn. It was released in 1968 and met with considerable success.

The play centers on the trials and troubles of King Henry II with his wife and three sons over the choice of his successor.

The next scheduled production of the Temple Civic Theatre is William Inge's "Bus Stop" to be presented April 28th and 29th and May 4, 5 and 6th. Auditions will

Bedroom Walls Jaded? Put On Paneling, Moldings

Western wood molding applied in "frames" over V-groove board paneling of western pine or hemlock, plus chair-rail, ceiling trim lend depth, richness to tired bedroom walls. Trend to larger master bedroom suites, daytime use as home office, sitting room add new emphasis to wall decorating.

with western wood board paneling, such as western pine or hemlock, left natural to show color and texture or painted or stained to match other decorative accents in the room.

Moldings Add Flair
Depth and richness is added to the walls with "frames" of western wood molding, a chair-rail and trim without burdening the family budget.

Another popular addition to master bedrooms is a bath-dressing room. One plan has a central core of shower, tub and toilet units dividing the room, accessible from separate dressing areas with closets and lavatories on each side.

Bathroom decorating needn't be deprived of the warm, natural look of wood. Western red cedar, with its high resistance to humidity, works wonderfully on bathroom walls, adding texture and color.

Open to Garden
Also adjacent to many new or remodeled master bedrooms is the garden room, exciting and inviting, yet easy to build and inexpensive, requiring just 2x4-inch Douglas fir for decking and railing, wood-framed sliding glass doors and a few tubbed plants.

Bi-fold louvered doors to close off the garden room and shuttered doors to the dressing room add to elegant look of the room. Built-in bookshelves, lamp and chairs make a quiet reading corner, and a folding table and storage provide an out-of-the-way area for hobbies or games.

This bedroom restyling is one of five add-a-room treatments shown in a 16-page booklet available for 25 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 526-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Removing Wall Accents Stairway

Removing a stairway wall and replacing it with a banister of 2x4-inch western wood can visually expand the adjacent room while adding a dramatic accent.

The rear stairway wall, painted a lively color or washed with lighting, becomes a gallery for art works or photographs.

If the stairs lead to an upper level, the area opened under the stairs can be used for storage or a desk. If stairs lead down, an open divider wall can be built in with bookshelves and display areas.

Tired walls needn't be tolerated in a bedroom any more than in other rooms of the house. An elegant new appearance can be achieved with easily available materials such as board paneling and wood moldings.

Bedrooms utilized only for sleeping aren't contributing their full potential. A trend in new homes and remodelings has master bedroom suites also serving as sitting rooms, sewing areas, home offices and other uses.

This multiple use means the bedroom should be as attractively decorated as other living spaces, and it's easily accomplished by covering the walls

Doors Of Yoe

Margaret Gause, do you always carry Kool-Aid in your coat pocket? And you had better watch being the backbone of pyramids. You might squash your grape Kool-Aid.

David Hornung, I'm sorry that I was ill when you scored 12 points in a basketball game. I would now like to recognize that fact publically.

I hope, Mrs. Edmonds, that you are feeling better. Needless to say there were quite a few students worried about you after your accident.

If anyone might be interested in a puppy I think Mrs. Green might be interested in giving one away. Someone delivered this little bundle of joy to her by means leaving her on the doorstep.

Lynn Willy, I hope you had a happy birthday. Paula Perkins, Toni Tumlinson, Nancy Krall and some other friends feted her with a surprise hayride Friday night. Hopefully no one turned into an icyle.

HISTORIC HEALTH SPAS ATTRACT U.S. TOURISTS

A little Latin Country in Southeast Europe is fast becoming a tourist "find" due to its geographical diversity, the remarkable preservation of its feudal folklore, the curative powers of its many health spas and—last but not least—its extremely modest prices which fit comfortably into any travel budget.

Romania, which has greatly expanded its tourist facilities in recent years, offers a wealth of attractions to U.S. travelers.
And now an increasing number of imaginative vacationers are discovering this country's striking physical beauty—which ranges from soaring mountain peaks to one of Europe's finest sand beaches—its rich urban culture and the more than 100 health spas and resorts which were first used with therapeutic results during the Roman occupation nearly 2000 years ago.

Today these spas, provided with the most modern medical equipment and staffed with highly competent professionals, are variously noted for their effectiveness in the treatment of rheumatism as well as afflictions of the nervous, cardio-vascular, gynecological,
digestive and endocrine systems.

Of special interest is the world-famous Bucharest Institute of Geriatrics which, under Professor Dr. Ana Aslan, studies and treats the complex problems of the ageing process.
Easily reached from all major European cities by air, rail or car—Romania's modern network of roads and railways takes visitors from leading spas to all major points of interest within a few hours travel time.

For detailed information on the country's health resorts and other outstanding attractions, contact your travel agent or the Romanian National Tourist Office, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York City.
